Congress cannot be accused of over-exerting itself.

When you hit Bryan in the pocketbook you strike a vulnerable spot.

The Vermont legislature sleeps for another year. Pleasant dreams!

A voice from Oyster Bay asserts "not a candidate." Quoth the raven: "What, nevermore?"

Gasoline has taken another upward jump. We shall have to engage the Germans to invent a substitute.

The world of the entente allies will have more faith in the Russian drive in Bukovina when it sees the works accomplished.

That strike of 350 wool workers at South Barre hits us only nominally, because it is South Barre, Mass., that the dispatches refer to.

Henry Ford cannot be blamed for balking at the proposal that he purchase new gowns for the ladies of the party. There are some things he can't afford. And that is one of them.

That Serbian army of 100,000 "ready to strike" is one of the wonders of the world—after the all but complete annihilation of the army by the central powers, according to their statement.

There is no doubt that the Burlington city council has acted in the interests of the beauty and the utility of the streets and sidewalks in ordering the removal of gasoline pumps from the street curbs.

If the reports are to be relied upon, there are some 650,000 "slackers" in England, Scotland and Wales. Still, a good many of them may have good and sufficient reasons for not enlisting in the British army.

A schoolboy, aged 18, of a Boston suburb was instantly killed when a revolver fell out of his pocket and was discharged when it struck the cement floor of a garage. Why, in the name of reason, was a schoolboy carrying a revolver?

They are installing what they call "panic-proof" doors in some public school-houses in Boston. Meanwhile, it might be well to train a few panic-proof children by means of strict and frequent practice.

This "an apple a day" movement is all right, but let it be a New England apple. —Boston Transcript.

And when you get right down to cases, let it be a Vermont apple, than which there is none better.

That journalistic freak which recently announced the death of a distinguished Vermont man about 10 days before the actual occurrence now has it that the kaiser is dead. However, it leaves a loophole in this instance so that it can "square itself." In the former instance, there was too great carelessness in re-writes, it seems.

At least two companies of the Vermont National Guard are calling for additional enlistments to bring their total enrollments up to the government's standard of 65 men. Rutland and Brattleboro are large enough communities so that they might be expected to furnish 65 good eligible men apiece for military service in piping times of peace.

The late leader of the so-called peace mission again breaks forth with the assertion that "the officials (presumably the officials of the United States) are the weakest of the lot. They are all afraid of losing their jobs. They will do nothing." Thus we have another demonstration of the wonderful insight of this man—as to the running of automobiles.

When president of the United States William Howard Taft was big enough to appoint a man of an opposing political faith as a member of the United States supreme court bench; in fact, he appointed two Democrats and elevated another to the position of chief justice. It would seem, therefore, if there is such a thing as reciprocity and a sense of gratitude on the part of a Democratic president that the choice of a successor to Justice Lamar might fall on Citizen William Howard Taft, a man whose predictions are decidedly in favor of a judicial position of that sort and who has had considerable experience in lower position of somewhat similar nature.

WHAT QUARRYING BRINGS IN.
 "Quarrying, both in marble, granite and slate, brings hundreds of thousands of dollars into the state each year, and, as The Reformer has pointed out before, the ground has only been scratched in the development in this line."—Brattleboro Reformer.

You are entirely too conservative in your statement, neighbor. For instance, approximately $2,000,000 is annually distributed in wages in Barre alone. Added to that is the manufacturers' share of the income from the sale of granite each year. All, or practically all, that money comes from outside the state, money which never would have found its way

For boys (as well as men), here are the latest mack-inaws. Yes, they fit with more fitness than last season and more variety in colors.

For overcoats, there's a very comprehensive line that covers the whole subject. Better-made garments never produced.

Everything in clothing that father wears will be found here made for the boy.

into Vermont had it not been for the Barre granite industry. And, besides Barre, there is the big marble industry on the west side of the state, together with several smaller granite centers and slate industries. So, taken all in all, you will have to raise that statement about hundreds of thousands of dollars coming into Vermont every year from this source. Make it millions, Mr. Reformer.

Peter Monti, arrested on River street Tuesday evening, decided he didn't want a jury trial in city court today and to that end he notified the court that he was ready to plead guilty yesterday afternoon. Before Magistrate H. W. Scott Monti acknowledged a breach of peace offense on Christmas day, admitting, too, that he was the aggressor in a troublesome joust with one Charles Young. Monti was sentenced to serve a term of not less than 95 days and not to exceed 120 days in the house of correction at Rutland. He was taken last evening to the county jail, to be removed thence to Rutland shortly. Monti was arrested by Chief Sinclair on a complaint made to Grand Juror William Wishart. His first thought was of a jury trial and after his original plea of not guilty arrangements were made for a trial to-day.

When a little snowballing episode exceeded the bounds of caution and good conduct on North Main street yesterday afternoon, the authorities intervened in behalf of an elderly man who was having his troubles with a troupe of school boys. Two youngsters whose conspicuous lack of manliness was particularly noticeable were haled into police headquarters by the officers. Grand Juror William Wishart investigated the snowballing affair and found that the elderly man had been a most unwilling target for the icy pellets. A pair of very resentful lads listened attentively while the grand juror gave them a homily on conduct and the same pair vowed they would snowball with more discretion hereafter if the grand juror would release them. There is a penalty for misdemeanors of this kind, the authorities say, and a few more incidents like that of yesterday will bring it into prominence.
